Changing emission with charge states. The fluorescence of electrochromic molecules changes with their charge state. Doppagne et al. studied the optical emission of single zinc-phthalocyanine molecules excited by electron injection from a scanning tunneling microscope tip.

Oscillation is the repetitive variation, typically in time, of some measure about a central value (often a point of equilibrium) or between two or more different states.

Infrared spectroscopy exploits the fact that molecules absorb frequencies that are characteristic of their structure. These absorptions occur at resonant frequencies, i.e. the frequency of the absorbed radiation matches the vibrational frequency.
